Are fewer bad checks a problem?

The diminishing number of bad checks is causing hardships for many prosecutors' offices. For the offices that have come to depend on bad check program fees to supplement their budgets, it can mean serious deficits, layoffs, or the curtailment of the programs. It has always been frustrating that the companies with the most bad checks – large national retailers – typically don't refer those checks to prosecutors.

It's doubly frustrating because the big box stores would love to take advantage of prosecutors' bad check programs and their high restitution rates. But, until now, the logistics made it all but impossible for large companies to work with the individual requirements of hundreds or even thousands of different prosecutors' offices.

Problem solved.

Check Connection eliminates the logistical problems by providing a single point of contact for accessing prosecutors' programs, nationwide. Now, merchants transmit their bad checks to Check Connection for distribution. In turn, Check Connection delivers the checks to prosecutors' offices – pre-screened to match the specifications of each program.

Your office receives many more checks – ready for processing with all the attending requirements met. You simply handle them in the usual manner and you retain all your usual fees.

NO COST. (No kidding.)

Prosecutors' bad check diversion programs are very effective at recovering restitution from the criminal bad checks. Most merchants know that they are in good hands with the prosecutors. Your program is no exception. That's why merchants are happy to pay Check Connection to do the logistics that get them to you.

It means your office pays nothing to get more checks and retain all your standard administrative fees. It can put your bad check program back on track.

Check Connection provides more checks to you at no cost. Find out how easy it is to breathe new life into your bad check program.

Keep up with change. Increase your bad check volumes.

Use of checks is changing, especially when it comes to larger merchants. Check 21 started it and now there are e-checks, guaranteed checks and a variety of internal and second-party check handling techniques. Electronic transmission of checks, and the loss of the original check require some adjustments.

If it seems a little daunting, Check Connection can make it easy and secure. We can even increase the efficiency of your program by helping blend the advantages of high-end technology into your day-to-day processes.

We work with hundreds of prosecutors across the country. We are sensitive to the needs of every jurisdiction, large or small. Avoid disruptions while improving both your efficiency and the flow of administrative fees. Now that's change for the better.

Add checks, with no risk or encumbering contracts.

This is the ideal way to replace checks your program has lost over the past couple of years.

How Simple is the Process?

Here is everything you have to do:

- Tell us what your program criteria are and then... conduct your program normally, just as you would with any other source of bad checks. That's it.

Sign a contract? NOT REQUIRED.

Change how you administer your program? NO
Pay for the checks you receive. Definitely not!

Here is what Check Connection does:

- Check Connection will match your program with the many regional and national merchants already using the Check Connection service.

- Those merchants transmit their checks to Checks Connection. We screen them to help eliminate non-qualifying checks.  then, send them on to your office, ready to work.
- For the restitution you successfully recover, simply return it to the victims, like always, through Check Connection. If there are questions about a check case, Check Connection is your single, knowledgeable, source. We will get your answers, quickly and easily. For checks that qualify for prosecution, we will do the legwork with the merchants and help secure any needed information.

Our staff has years of experience working with prosecutors' bad check programs. You will be working with professionals who understand what is important to you.

Maintain complete control.

With no contract to bind your office, Check Connection gives you complete control. Keep using the Connection as long as it works for you. If you ever want to change, just do it. (We don't think you will ever want to.)

Check Connection works directly with the regional and large national retailers and check processing companies such as TeleCheck and Certegy. The majority of prosecutors welcome checks from all these sources, there is no requirement about which checks you accept. It is completely up to you.

If you have questions about e-checks, check guarantee, electronic transmission of checks, images and supporting information, our representatives can explain everything in detail so you can decide what makes the most sense for your program.

Who's Who?

Check Connection continues to add to its list of participating merchants. Here is a sample of some of the regional and national companies that Check Connection can connect to your program:

7-11, Ace Hardware, Ann Taylor Loft, AT&T Wireless, Bed Bath and Beyond, Best Buy, Bit Lots, Bloomingdales, Cingular Wireless, Coach Leather, Costco, Dicks Sporting Goods, Dillards, Firestone, Food Lion, Foot Locker, Goodwill Industries, Hickory Farms, Hobbytown, Macy's Marshalls, Meijers, Office Depot, Office Max, Pep Boys, Petco, Pizza Hut, Pottery Barn, Publix, Safeway, Saks Fifth Avenue, Save-a-Lot, Sears, Sharper Image, Staples, Subway, TJ Maxx, Talbots, Value City, Verizon, Yankee Candle and more.

Of course, you are wondering about Wal-Mart? Yes, those checks come to your program via Check Connection, through TeleCheck, which handles Wal-Mart's checks.

The logo for Check Connection features the word "Check" in a white, sans-serif font, with a white swoosh that starts under the "C" and loops around the "k". Below "Check" is the word "Connection" in a larger, bold, white, sans-serif font. The swoosh continues under "Connection" and loops around the "C".
